

Daisy Learns to Be Brave

Courage helps us try new things!

Daisy was a little duckling who lived in a peaceful pond. She loved watching the other ducks swim, but she was afraid to go into the water herself.

"What if I can't do it?" she thought.
"What if I fall?"

Every day, Daisy would stand at the edge of the pond and watch. Her mother would smile and say, "You can do it, Daisy! Just take a small step."

One sunny morning, Daisy closed her eyes, took a deep breath, and stepped into the water. At first, she wobbled. But then she felt the water hold her. She paddled... and paddled... and soon she was swimming!

Daisy felt so proud. "I did it!" she quacked. "Sometimes we have to be brave to discover what we can do!"

From that day on, Daisy tried new things and encouraged her friends to be brave too.
