

Hazel and the Whispering Garden

Hazel the hedgehog discovered a secret garden behind a stone wall. The garden was beautiful. Flowers danced in the breeze. Butterflies floated above the grass.

But Hazel heard something unusual. "Psst...." She looked around. "Who said that?" "Me," whispered a little blue flower.

Hazel's eyes became wide. "You can talk!" "Yes," said the flower. "But nobody listens to us."

Hazel sat quietly. She listened to the flowers. The roses wanted more water. The sunflowers needed more sunlight. The tiny blue flowers needed protection from the wind.

Hazel called her friends. Together, they watered the plants, moved the stones, and built tiny wooden fences.

After a few days, the garden became brighter than ever. "You saved our garden!" whispered the flowers.

Hazel smiled. "I didn't save it alone. I simply listened."

From that day on, Hazel became the garden's best listener.

A KINDER WORLD
GROWS
HERE

Moral:

Listening carefully helps us understand and solve problems.

New Words:

- secret
- whisper
- breeze
- protect
- listener

Small listeners make a brighter world! ❤️