

Sam was a cheerful little squirrel who loved to collect acorns. He wanted to grow his own tree, so he planted a special acorn in the soft soil.

Every day, Sam visited the spot and looked for a tiny plant. But nothing happened. He felt disappointed.

“Maybe it will never grow,” thought Sam.

A kind bird saw Sam looking sad. “Be patient!” said the bird. “Plants need time to grow. Good things take time!”

Sam decided to be patient. He watered the soil and took care of it every day.

Weeks passed, and one morning, Sam saw a small green sprout! He was so happy!

Sam smiled and said, “I’m glad I didn’t give up. Patience is truly a good thing!”

From that day on, Sam learned that waiting can be hard, but good things are always worth the wait.

Moral:

Good things are worth the wait.

New Words:

- patient
- plant
- sprout
- disappointed
- grow
- care

Think About It:

- 1 Why was Sam feeling sad?
- 2 What helped Sam to be patient?

Draw It:

Draw Sam
planting the acorn.

